Ammann, Keith
HOW TO DEFEND YOUR LAIR
Hardcover * December 2022

In this fourth installment of The Monsters Know What They're Doing series, Dungeon Master Keith Ammann pulls back the curtain on a vastly underrated, but vitally important part of any fifth edition D&D game: drawing the maps. Say goodbye to random encounters between PCs and baddies, and welcome to a game in which where the fight takes place is just as important the fight itself. Ammann has been a Dungeons & Dragons player and DM for more than thirty years. He has been writing his fifth Edition D&D-focused blog The Monsters Know What They're Doing—now also a book by the same name published by Saga in 2019—since 2016. He lives in Chicago.

SILVER UNDER NIGHTFALL
Hardcover * September 2022

Remy Pendergast is many things: the only son of the Duke of Valenbonne, an elite bounty hunter of rogue vampires, and an outcast among his fellow Reapers. His mother was a subject of gossip even before she eloped with a vampire, giving rise to rumors that Remy is half-vampire himself. Remy's father has been shaping him into a weapon to fight for the kingdom of Aluria his entire life, though his father barely tolerates him in return. When a terrifying new breed of vampire is sighted outside of the city, Remy prepares to investigate the mutating virus known as the Rot alone. But then he encounters the shockingly warmhearted vampire heiress Xiaodan Song and her infuriatingly arrogant fiancé, vampire lord Zidan Malekh, who may hold the key to defeating the creatures. As the three face dangerous hardships during their journey, Remy develops fond and complicated feelings for the couple. He begins to question what he holds true about vampires, as well as the story behind his own family legacy. As the Rot continues to spread, he must decide where his loyalties lie: with his father and the kingdom he's spent his life defending, or the vampires who might just be the death of him.

THE BLACK GUY DIES FIRST: Black Horror from Fodder to Oscar

Trade Paperback * February 2023

The Black Guy Dies First explores the wild, wicked, waggish journey of Blacks in modern horror cinema, from the fodder epitomized by Spider Baby to the cinematic heights of Get Out and beyond. It discusses the themes, tropes, and traits that have come to characterize Black roles in horror since 1968, a year in which race made national headlines in iconic moments like: the Kerner Commission indicting "White racism" for U.S. social ills in February; enactment of the 1968 Civil Right Act and Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination in April; Olympic medalists Tommie Smith and John Carlos raising their "Black Power" fists in October; and Star Trek airing American television's first interracial kiss in November. Dr. R. Means Coleman is Northwestern's vice president and associate provost for diversity and inclusion, chief diversity officer, and the Ida

B. Wells. An internationally prominent and award-winning scholar, Dr. Coleman's work focuses on media studies and the cultural politics of Blackness. She is co-author of Intercultural Communication for Everyday Life (2014, Wiley-Blackwell). She is the editor of Say It Loud! African American Audiences, Media, and Identity (2002, Routledge) and co-editor of Fight the Power! The Spike Lee Reader (2008, Peter Lang). She is also the author of a number of other academic and popular publications. Dr. Coleman is featured in, and executive produced, the critically acclaimed documentary film Horror Noire which is based on her book Horror Noire: Blacks in American Horror Films from the 1890s to Present. Mark H. Harris is an entertainment journalist who has written about cinema and pop culture for over 20 years for New York magazine, Vulture.com, RottenTomatoes.com, About.com, PopMatters, Salem Horror Fest, Napster, MadAtoms, Pretty-Scary.net, Ugly Planet and THEiNDI. A lifelong horror fan, he created the website BlackHorrorMovies.com in 2005 to fill the void in online representation of the African American presence in horror and has proceeded to chronicle the history of black achievement in the genre one movie at a time. As a result, he has been interviewed on NPR's News & Notes, podcasts like Scream Addicts and I Do Moves Badly, the French publication Trois Couleurs and GraveyardShiftSisters.com, in addition to being a featured commentator in the acclaimed documentary Horror Noire.
