SHOOT THE MOON: A Novel

Debut novel! 1948, Santa Fe: Lonely and practically friendless, Annie Fisk finds solace in the mystery of strange trinkets that appear in a corner of her mother's garden. When the fragile peace of her family life is upended by tragedy, Annie longs to escape the confines of her small world. 1969, Houston: Finally embracing a bigger life at the cost of her first love, recent college graduate Annie lands a job as a secretary at the Manned Center for NASA's Apollo 11 mission. Soon, her discreet attempts to correct an engineer's work behind his back unexpectedly propel her into a flourishing romance and worthy promotion. As Annie finds herself engrossed in the challenge of a life filled with purpose, the past begins to reach for her. Can Annie finally tear away from her fear of abandonment and reach through space to give herself what she's been missing all along? Affectingly achronological in its telling, spanning the distances created by age-old wounds, Shoot the Moon is a beautifully moving story about the driving need for both intellectual fulfilment and romantic love, the high human cost of scientific progress and discovery, and an ode to the heart's yearning for home. Isa Arsén is a sound designer based in central Texas. Inspired by her own childhood summers in New Mexico, Shoot the Moon is her debut novel.

PLAYING THE WITCH CARD: A Novel

Flair Hardwicke knows the deal: Magic is real, love isn't, and relying on either ends in disaster. She's seen the havoc romance and witchcraft wreaked on her mother's life, and Flair swore off all of it long ago, after the boy she thought was her destiny ditched her. But then her strictly no-magic life falls apart, and Flair inherits her grandmother's home and bakery in Rattleboro, Kansas. When the cookies Flair decorates as Tarot cards unleash the magic of the family deck she stole as a child, luring Flair's mother to town, tempting Flair's magic-obsessed daughter, ensnaring Flair's ex in a curse she can't break, and bringing Flair's first love back to town, Flair has to accept that while she may have given up on magic, it refuses to give up on her. As Flair's attempts to control the Tarot cards play into the hands of a powerful witch, Flair must find a way to accept her magical heritage to save those she loves from a danger she'd never anticipated. THE CHRISTMAS CAFÉ: A Novel

Fall 2023

Debut novel! Sylvie West has been the baker at the Christmas Café in Silver Bells, Wyoming, ever since her boozy eggnog fruitcake won the town's annual holiday bakeoff fifteen years ago. Her forever happy place, the café compliments her sweet, well-ordered life with her grandfather and yappy chihuahua-pug, Crumpet. But spinning recipes for Christmas comfort foods all year is all fun and pretty, until business declines and the café must be sold to an expanding fast-food chain. Now more than ever, Sylvie is determined to put the Christmas Café on the map. Good thing the Happy Endings Channel is filming in Silver Bells. And how perfect of bra-snatching Crumpet to have forced an awkward encounter with the film's charming lead actor. Taking each mishap in stride, Sylvie leaves the comforts of her deluxe oven to pitch her culinary home to the town's newest tastemakers, hoping they might just feature the Christmas café onscreen. It's the perfect plan... until she finds herself in the spotlight. When not writing, Eliza Evans can be found teaching Pilates or hiking the trails near her house in Colorado. The Christmas Café is her debut novel.

WANDERLUST: A Novel

July 2023

Debut novel! Feeling stuck at work and tired of London's dreary weather, magazine writer Dylan Coughlan impulsively rings a radio station one day only to win a once-in-a-lifetime trip around the world. The catch? Her travel partner must be a contact randomly selected on her phone. And of course this stressful game of contact roulette lands on a number listed only as Jack the Posho, an uptight, unbearably posh guy she met on a night out and accidentally ghosted. The two couldn't be more different, and as the trip kicks off, Jack seems like he'd sooner fling himself into the sun than have a conversation with Dylan. But more is hinging on this trip than the chance to see the world. For the past two years, Dylan's been relegated to writing quizzes at her lifestyle magazine after an article about her past abortion went viral—and not in the good way. If she's able to make a series about their trip successful, her overbearing boss will give her a chance at a permanent column. Dylan is willing to do anything to make the series a hit, even if it means embellishing her and Jack's relationship to satisfy readers. But as the column's popularity grows, so does the actual bond between Dylan and Jack, and Dylan is forced to decide if securing her column is worth capitalizing on a relationship that's about to take flight. THOSE WE THOUGHT WE KNEW: A Novel

August 2023

Toya Harris, a young artist from Atlanta, has returned to her ancestral home in the North Carolina mountains to produce an art installation that will shed light on an event whitewashed and erased from history. But when she encounters a still-standing Confederate monument in the heart of town, she sets her sights on something bigger. Meanwhile, when local deputies find a man sleeping in the back of a station wagon, they believe him to be nothing more than some slack-jawed drifter. Yet a search of the man's vehicle reveals him to be a high-ranking member of the Klan, and the uncovering of a notebook filled with local names threatens to turn the mountain on end. HOW TOXIC FASHION
IS MAKING US SICK

Wicker, Alden

June 2023

TO DYE FOR: How Toxic Fashion is Making Us Sick

Many of us are aware of the ethical minefield that is fast fashion: the dodgy labor practices, the lax environmental standards, and the mountains of waste piling up on the shores of developing countries. But far fewer consider the dangerous effects that our clothes have on our own health. Award-winning journalist Alden Wicker explores the unregulated toxic chemicals that are likely in your wardrobe right now, how they're harming you, and what you can do about it. There are more than 3000 different chemicals used in fashion today, with up to 50 of them present on a single garment (including children and baby clothes!), and a good portion of them are known to be carcinogenic, hormone-disrupting, and sensitizing to the skin and lungs. Wicker reveals how clothing makers have successfully swept consumers' concerns under the rug for more than 150 years, and why synthetic fashion and dyes made from fossil fuels are so deeply intertwined with the rise of autoimmune disease, infertility, asthma, eczema, society-wide weight gain, and more. She explains how we got here, what the stakes are, and what all of us can do in the fight for a safe and healthy wardrobe. BURN THE NEGATIVE: A Novel

Journalist Laura Warren is mid-flight to Los Angeles when she learns that the streaming series she's about to report on is a remake of a '90s horror flick. A cursed '90s horror flick. The one that she starred in—and has been running from her whole life. As a child actor, Laura was cast as the lead in The Guesthouse. She played Tammy Manners, the little girl with the terrifying gift to tell people how the Needle Man would kill them. But her big break was her last, as eight of her cast and crew mates died in mysterious ways, and the film became infamous—a cult classic of fictional horror that somehow summoned the real thing. Hoping to move on from all the negative press, Laura changed her name and her accent, dyed her hair, and moved across the Atlantic Ocean. But some scripts don't want to stay buried. Soon after landing, Laura finds a yellow dress just like the one she wore in the movie, then the words "She's here" scratched into the wall in an actor's trailer. And then people working on the series start dying. It's all happening again, Laura's worst nightmare brought to life, and she finds herself on the run with her sister and a jaded psychic, hoping to find answers—and to stay out of the Needle Man's lethal reach. An homage to slasher films with a fresh take on the true price of fame, Burn the Negative is a twisty thriller best read with the lights on.
