JUST DO THE RIGHT THING

Fall 2023

#3 in the Stoic Virtues series. The Stoics believed that if we do what's right, then everything else important would follow: happiness, success, meaning, reputation, honor, love. They didn't claim this path was easy, or that it would always be recognized or appreciated by those closest to us, only that it was essential. And that the alternative—taking the easy route or the shortcut even if unethical or immoral—was considered only by cowards and fools. In Just Do the Right Thing, Ryan Holiday draws on the stories of historical figures we can emulate as pillars of upright living, as well as on cautionary tales of those we should avoid. Through these engaging examples, Holiday teaches readers the power of owning one's convictions and cautions against the perils of an ill-formed conscience. At the heart of Stoicism are four simple virtues: courage, temperance, justice, and wisdom. Everything else, the Stoics believed, flows from them. Justice is the cornerstone of the Stoic Virtues; you cannot succeed without it. Holiday is the #1 New York Times-bestselling author of Discipline is Destiny, Courage is Calling, Stillness is the Key, The Daily Stoic, and many others.

HOW NFTs CREATE VALUE

Spring 2024

NFT stands for “non-fungible token.” Simply put, an NFT is more than a picture on the internet; it is a record of digital ownership stored on a public ledger called a blockchain. Historically, it has been very difficult to prove digital ownership. NFTs change that by providing a way to design irrefutable proof of ownership, and in doing so, open a market for buying, selling, and trading digital assets that has never before existed. Harvard Business School professor and a16z research partner Scott Kominers and web3 marketer Steve Kaczynski are the foremost experts to explain the technology that underlies NFTs and their potential to transform every aspect of business. Kominers and Kaczynski show how NFTs are already revolutionizing digital commerce and how brands can use them to build highly engaged and intensely loyal communities around their products. Through original research and industry experience, Kominers and Kaczynski describe the possibilities of this new digital frontier with clarity and rigor. How NFTs Create Value will open your eyes to the NFT revolution. Kominers is a Harvard Business School professor, a research partner at Andreessen Horowitz Crypto, and a Bloomberg columnist. He is also an avid NFT collector and advises a number of NFT companies and other crypto projects. Kaczynski is a communications and marketing professional, including stints in leadership at Progressive Insurance and Nestle. He is also an avid NFT collector.

SLOW PRODUCTIVITY

Spring 2024

In Slow Productivity, Cal Newport returns to the individual at work and examines why we are so overloaded—and no, it's not just the fault of the management overlords. Even freelancers, artists, and entrepreneurs suffer from damaging levels of busyness. In our efforts to be productive, as we believe it should look, we've made the situation worse. Autonomy, technology, and managerial ego have all conspired to bring us down. Slow productivity is the solution. Some have lumped slow productivity into the more recent anti-ambition movement, but Newport means to do the opposite. As always, his goal is for us to be more successful. Doing fewer things, working at a natural pace, while obsessing over quality, are the keys to real success. After laying out the problem and making a case for the solution, he doubles down on concrete strategies that guide us toward a better way to work. Newport is a computer science professor at Georgetown University and the New York Times-bestselling author of seven books, including A World Without Email, Digital Minimalism, The Time Block Planner, and Deep Work, which have been published in over 35 languages. He is a regular contributor to the New Yorker, the New York Times, and WIRED, a frequent guest on NPR, and the host of the popular Deep Questions podcast.

THE BIG FAIL: How Covid Caught America by Surprise

Fall 2023

In 2020, the novel coronavirus pandemic made it painfully clear that the US could not adequately protect its citizens. Millions of Americans suffered and died in just two years, while the Trump administration blundered, prize-winning economists overlooked devastating trade-offs, and elites escaped to isolated retreats, unaffected by and even profiting from the pandemic. Why and how did America fail so badly? In this page-turning economic, political, and financial history, veteran journalists Joseph Nocera and Bethany McLean offer fresh and provocative answers. With laser-sharp analysis and deep sourcing, they investigate what really happened when governments ran out of PPE due to snarled supply chains and the shock to the financial system when the world's biggest economy stumbled. They zero in on the effectiveness of wildly polarized approaches, with governors Andrew Cuomo of New York and Ron DeSantis of Florida emerging as unlikely and opposing icons. And they trace why thousands died in hollowed-out hospital systems and nursing homes run by private equity firms to "maximize shareholder value." In the tradition of the authors' landmark collaborations The Smartest Guys in the Room and All the Devils Are Here, The Big Fail is an expansive, insightful account on what the pandemic did to the economy and how American capitalism has jumped the rails—and is essential reading to understand where we're going next. Nocera is a journalist and column writer for Dealbook. McLean is a journalist and contributing editor at Vanity Fair.

TITLE TK

Fall 2023

The moments that matter do not always announce themselves as decisions to be made. And yet the actions we take in these moments move us closer or further away from the results we ultimately seek—love, belonging, success, wealth, victory. According to Shane Parrish, we must get better at recognizing these major moments and deploying our cognitive ability in order to achieve the life we want. This book gives you the tools to identify these moments and reshape how you navigate the critical space between stimulus and response. As Parrish shows, we may imagine we are the protagonists in the story of our lives. But the sad truth is, most of us run on autopilot. Our behavioral defaults, groomed by biology, evolution, and culture, are primed to run the show for us if we don't intervene. At our worst, we react to events without reasoning, not even realizing that we're making a decision at all. At our best, we recognize these deciding moments for what they are and apply the full capacity of our reasoning and rationality to them. Through stories, mental models, and more, Parrish offers the missing link between behavioral science and real-life results. This is a must-have manual for optimizing decision-making, gaining competitive advantage, and living a more intentional life. Parrish is the founder, curator, and wisdom seeker behind Farnam Street, the Brain Food newsletter, and The Knowledge Project podcast.

THE CONFIDENCE MAP: Charting a Path from Chaos to Clarity

What do feelings of certainty and control have to do with our decision making? Once we understand how they drive what we do, we can predict trends and generate better outcomes, whether we're investing in technology stocks, designing menu items for a fast-food franchise, or running an emergency room. In The Confidence Map, Peter Atwater explores how feelings always trump facts and why events described as being unprecedented are often entirely predictable—if we know what to look for. He then shows readers how to apply his unique framework to their own choices, using the same tools he teaches the world's leading institutional investors, corporations, and policymakers to make sense of complex situations and optimize their strategies. Spanning financial, economic, political, and social trends, The Confidence Map explores why we do what we do, where we can and cannot trust our natural instincts, and how we can make sense of a world that too often feels senseless. With Atwater's toolkit in your decision-making arsenal, you'll avoid psychological traps, spot opportunities, and navigate the road ahead with clarity and purpose. Atwater is an Adjunct Professor of Economics at William and Mary and President of Financial Insights, a consulting firm that advises institutional investors, major corporations, and global policymakers on how social mood affects decision making, the economy, and the markets.

THE COURAGE OF COMPASSION: A Journey from Judgment to Connection

While there is now greater reckoning with mass incarceration and systemic racism as the bedrock of our legal system, the discourse around what justice looks like for people who have committed serious crimes remains largely unchanged. Robin Steinberg has dedicated her career to defending the “undefendable.” She has witnessed firsthand how blind rage and downright hatred corrupts our idealized notions of justice. Here she shares the heart-wrenching stories of her clients and asks us recognize the humanity in all people—regardless of what they’ve done. Writing with authenticity, vulnerability, and the wisdom of a veteran, The Courage of Compassion is a moving exploration of how systems of crime and punishment diminish our humanity. It is also a gritty tale about blazing your own path and taking action in the face of injustice. As Steinberg writes, the quest to reform the justice system can only end “when we can finally see in the faces of those ensnared and imprisoned in our legal system, ourselves. And when we can see our children, in their children.” Steinberg is the founder and CEO of The Bail Project, a national effort to combat mass incarceration by transforming the pretrial system in the United States.

SOLD OUT: How Broken Supply Chains, Surging Inflation, and Political Instability Will Sink the Global Economy

The supply chain crisis is coming to a head. Today, your favorite products are missing from store shelves, caught in supply chain limbo somewhere in the Pacific Ocean. But what does this disruption look like six months, or even three years, from now? While we hope that post-pandemic recovery will absolve these issues, the reality is that digital currency, meme stocks, and social media can't solve the age-old problem of producing and moving physical goods across oceans and continents. According to James Rickards, consumer frustration is only the tip of a very large, menacing iceberg that threatens global economic collapse. In Sold Out, Rickards shares his predictions for our post-pandemic future and outlines how consumers and business owners can get ahead of the collapse. You'll learn how energy shortages in China, fueled by a trade war with Australia, is disrupting the entire steel market and forcing factories to shut down. You'll also learn how rising inflation will ultimately lead to deflation in a few short years, as consumer spending eventually tanks due to higher taxes, excessive debt, and increased layoffs—and why such economic conditions will closely resemble the 1930s. Our global economy faces unprecedented challenges in the next few months. But whether we sink or swim depends on how prepared we are—and what we do now to thwart the coming collapse. Rickards is the bestselling author of The New Great Depression, Aftermath, The New Case for Gold, and others.

IDEAFLOW: The Only Business Metric that Matters

Stanford d.school professors Perry Klebahn and Jeremy Utley reveal how leaders can dramatically boost the creative output of their organizations, drawing from their popular courses. How many new ideas could you come up with if given nothing but ten minutes, a pen, and a piece of paper? Your number of ideas is a metric for your ability to generate novel solutions to any given problem, on demand. This is what Stanford d.school professors Klebahn and Utley call ideaflow. It is the most crucial business metric that you've never considered.

Why? Every business problem is an idea problem. How well you can solve those problems—how much your ideaflow is—is how well you and your business perform, navigate uncertainty, and develop innovations. Drawing from their decades of teaching Silicon Valley entrepreneurs and Fortune 500 executives at the world-famous Stanford d.school, Klebahn and Utley offer a battle-tested framework to exponentially boost your ideaflow. Klebahn is an Adjunct Professor and Director of Executive Education at Stanford d.school. Utley is the Director of Executive Education at the d.school and an Adjunct Professor at Stanford's School of Engineering.

STRUGGLE SESSIONS: Dispatches from the Wrong Side of History

Nothing Nellie Bowles did shocked her San Francisco neighbors and friends until she started asking whether the progressive movement she loved actually helped people. Gently informed that asking these questions meant she was “on the wrong side of history,” Bowles did what any reporter worth her salt would do: she started investigating for herself. The answers she found were worse—and funnier—than she’d expected. In Struggle Sessions, Bowles takes readers inside the world of the elite woke to paint a devastating portrait of a cultural ideology gone awry. With irreverent accounts of attending Robin DiAngelo’s multi-day course on “The Toxic Trends of Whiteness,” meeting the social justice activists who run “Abolitionist Entertainment, LLC,” and navigating the increasingly deranged world of the New York Times, she deftly exposes the more comic excesses of wealthy progressives. Deliciously funny and painfully insightful, Struggle Sessions is an unmissable debut by one of America’s sharpest journalists. Bowles is a journalist writing about business and culture. Previously, she was a tech reporter at the New York Times and a correspondent for VICE News Tonight.

TAKE DOWN: My Fight to Destroy Pornhub and the Rape-for-Profit Industry

Most people know that Pornhub is a titan of its industry, receiving billions of visits per month. But fewer know that it’s infested with rape videos, including child rape and revenge porn—or that this illegal content has made its CEOs unimaginably rich. In 2020, anti-sex trafficking activist Laila Mickelwait decided to hold Pornhub accountable for the first time, exposing a criminal enterprise hidden in plain sight. Take Down is the story of her battle to seek justice for Pornhub’s many victims, including her efforts to bring trafficked women to safety while dodging personal threats from Pornhub’s agents. Readers will follow her journey, from discovering thousands of videos of child abuse and rape on Pornhub to facing down death threats to pressuring the FBI, Congress, and all major credit card companies to join her cause. Today, Pornhub has been forced to delete 80% of its content—and Mickelwait isn’t stopping there. Take Down will forever transform the way we think about the pornography industry, challenging our beliefs about safety, freedom, and liberation. It also introduces readers to an extraordinary activist who has worked tirelessly to keep women safe. Mickelwait is the Founder and CEO of the Justice Defense Fund and the Founder of the global #Traffickinghub movement.
